The Scorecard

TEN DIMENSIONS · FOUR VERIFIED BY DIRECT INSPECTION

Visual Design VERIFIED

5.0/10

Generic Wix template; headline is keyword-stuffed ("tree service near me") rather than a clear brand statement.

Mobile Experience VERIFIED

6.0/10

Wix theme is responsive and tap-to-call links are present, so phones mostly work.

Technical SEO VERIFIED

3.0/10

Site runs on a free wixsite.com/mysite subdomain and crams everything onto one keyword-stuffed page, which caps Google ranking.

Conversion (CRO) VERIFIED

5.0/10

A quote form and click-to-call exist but are buried in a long single-page scroll.

Performance / Speed SCORED

4.0/10

Heavy one-page Wix build with ~36 images; slow to load on mobile.

Content & Messaging SCORED

5.0/10

Wide service list but no dedicated service or service-area pages and no pricing.

Trust & Social Proof SCORED

5.0/10

39 Google reviews exist but a gmail.com contact address undercuts credibility vs. a branded domain.

Local SEO SCORED

4.0/10

A free subdomain and gmail address weaken domain authority and NAP consistency for local ranking.

Accessibility SCORED

6.0/10

Images carry alt text; contrast is acceptable on the default theme.

Branding SCORED

What We Found

THE CONCRETE ISSUES COSTING YOU CALLS AND LEADS

Your site lives on a free Wix address (dundirtcheaptulsa.wixsite.com/mysite) instead of your own domain, so it reads as temporary and quietly caps how high you rank on Google.

Your contact email is a gmail.com address rather than name@yourdomain, which makes a 39-review company look smaller than it is to homeowners comparing bids.

Everything is crammed onto one long, keyword-stuffed page, so Google can't tell what you specialize in and visitors have to scroll a long way to book.

Dun' Dirt Cheap has the reviews and service range to compete, but a free Wix subdomain and a gmail address make it look smaller than it is and hold back Google. Moving to an owned domain with a few focused pages would lift both credibility and ranking. Competitors like GreenPro and Oklahoma Landscape already have that foundation, so the gap widens every month.
